
So You Want to Build a Fence

Do You Need a Development Permit?

No, you do not need a development permit as long as your fence is under 0.61 m or (2.0 feet) high. If it is over 0.61 m high then you do require a development permit.

Fences must be on or within your property line. From the front of the house, forward to the property line, the fence must not be over 0.91 m tall (3.0 feet), and from the front of the house to the back property line, they must not be over 1.83 m tall (6.0 feet).

There are restrictions when you build a fence next to a street or back alley. For traffic safety purposes you may be required to put a 'corner cut' on your fence.
